A climate transition for agriculture: processes and outcomes

2. The aim of the evidence session is to allow the Committee to explore what the decarbonisation of agriculture will mean in practice for the sector, and what role the Scottish Government must play to enable this transition.
3. Evidence gathered at this session will help to inform further consideration of these issues by the Committee when it hears from academics and climate experts at its meeting on March 19. The session will supporting the Committee's future scrutiny work on the draft Climate Change Plan when it is laid later this year.
