Background

7. The National Planning Framework is the spatial expression of Scottish Government policy.

8. The Town and Country Planning (Scotland) Act 1997, as amended by the Planning etc. (Scotland) Act 2006 and the Planning (Scotland) Act 2019, provides the legislative framework for the National Planning Framework (NPF).

9. It requires that a strategy for spatial development¹ be created and should include a statement of what Scottish Ministers consider to be priorities for development². It should also contain—

- Targets for the use of land in different areas of Scotland for housing³
- An assessment of how proposed national developments⁴ and the strategy as a whole⁵ will impact on the achievement of greenhouse gas emission targets;
- An indication of how the strategy will meet housing needs⁶, improve health and wellbeing⁷, repopulate rural areas⁸, improve equality⁹ and secure "positive effects for biodiversity"¹⁰.

10. The NPF4 will—

“incorporate Scottish Planning Policy \(SPP\) which contains detailed national policy on a number of planning topics. For the first time, spatial and thematic planning policies will be addressed in one place.”¹¹

Scottish Parliamentary Scrutiny

14. The collaborative approach includes—

- That the subject committees take the lead in scrutinising policies and proposals within their remit;

- To maximise the time available for scrutiny by each committee taking evidence on issues within their remit (which will allow time for committees to take evidence from their Cabinet Secretaries);
- To invite committees to write to relevant Cabinet Secretaries and the Local Government, Housing and Planning Committee with their conclusions;
- To include the correspondence of other committees in the report of the Local Government, Housing and Planning Committee, along with detail of common threads; and
- To seek to lodge a motion in the names of all committees who reported on the draft NPF4 for a Chamber debate.
